PROCEEDS OF MINGLED COTTON.

Whitfield vs. United States, appeal from the Court of Claims. In this case it is held that cotton sold to the Confederate States during the war by a resident of Alabama—he receiving lawful State honds in payment—passedds the Confederate States and became their property, Italia ful State bonds in payment—passed to the Confederate States and became their property, Itabia to capture and confiscation by the Government. Nor did it affect the transfer that the Confederate States afterward became insolvent. The contract was executed before the insolvency, and completed sales in such cases will be enforced, although contracts of sale in aid of the rebelilou would not be.

The Chief Justice delivered the opinion.

Court in General Term.

The Supreme Court in general term met yesterday; on the bench, Chief Justice Cartter and Judges MacArthur and Wylie.

Mr. Rhidile called attention of the court to the case of Guy h. Thompson and T. J. Lassenby, which was not on the calendar. He stated that exceptions were taken during the trial, and the charge, reviewed by Judge Olin, who sat in the charge, reviewed by Judge Olin, who sat in the charge, reviewed by Judge Olin, who sat for the charge, and which he characterised as a caricature on the charge that was in relation to the charge, and which he characterised as a caricature on the charge that was made. Judge Olin and the counsel had been imable to settle the bill of exceptions, and at the suggestion of Judge MacArthur they came before the court in general term and made a statement. They asked a hearing, permission to file a motion for a new trial, and opportunity to have a hearing before the court.

It was decided that he should make formal application in chambers before Judge MacArthur. The bond of W. H. Frazer and W. G. Harper, as justices of the peace, were approved.

In the case of Hofman vs. Washington Market Company, General Butler asked that the case be assigned for an early day, and in consideration Court in General Term.
